TEMPLE SUMMER LAW PROGRAM IN ROME
MAY 21 - JUNE 21, 2019

Study international and comparative law in the heart of Rome and immerse yourself in la dolce vita for five weeks.

Temple University's Rome campus is located on the Tiber River within walking distance of many famous historic sites. Classes are taught in English by American and Italian law professors. The program includes field trips that are designed to give students an understanding of Italian and European legal history and culture.

Students are encouraged to find their own accommodations. For those who would rather not find their own housing, Temple can arrange housing in a Residence convenient to the Rome campus.

Applications are available online at: http://lawgradandintl.temple.edu
Application Deadline: March 1, 2019

Applicants must submit:

- completed application form; and
- $50.00 non-refundable application fee (waived for Temple students)

Deposits Required:

A $200 tuition deposit is due by March 15, 2019, and is credited towards tuition. The tuition deposit is non-refundable.

If a student elects to use Temple arranged housing, an email should be sent by March 15, 2019.

Admission Criteria: Completion of one year in good standing at an ABA approved law school. Temple Law students are considered for summer program admission after their fall semester grades are posted. Students in good academic standing (2.0) are eligible to attend.

Non-Temple arranged housing options: As in most cities, the key to apartment hunting in Rome is location. You should try to find housing that is within walking distance to the campus. Apartments designated as "center city" (or "centro storico") or near the Vatican ("Vaticano") will probably be most convenient. It is wise to rent an apartment near a metro stop. A map of the metro can be found online at:

The following are some agencies that may prove useful although Temple makes no representations or warranties concerning them and has no connection to them (more will be provided in the pre-departure manual):

- Airbnb.com
- www.romepower.com: provides housing to professionals staying in Rome for an extended period of time and short-lets to tourists.
- www.romanhomes.com: centrally located apartments, a bit more expensive.
- www.italy-weekly-rentals.com: one week villa & apartment rentals.
- www.ownersdirect.co.uk: England-based Company that locates short-term housing.
- www.barclayweb.com: London-based company in weekly and short-term self-catering apartments.
- www.romesweethome.it: Italian-based company that provides wide selections of self-catering apartments.
- www.romanreference.com: Rome-based company that lists short-term vacation rentals and sub-lets.

TEMPLE SUMMER LAW PROGRAM IN ROME 2019

COURSE OFFERINGS

Introduction to European Union Law and International Civil Litigation are each worth 2 credits. Global Legal Perspectives is worth 1 credit and it is mandatory. J.D. Students may enroll in up to 5 credits.

Introduction to European Union Law (2 credit hours)
Professor Louis Natali

Italy is a member of the European Union, making it an excellent place to study European law. This course surveys the institutions of the European Union, the EU mechanisms for establishing law and adjudicating disputes, and the main bodies of EU law and leading cases. The focus of this course will be on issues of jurisdiction, harmonization and enforcement of the laws of the various European member states.

International Civil Litigation (2 credit hours)
Professor Susan DeJarnatt (Director)

As the world grows ever more interconnected, U.S. lawyers are often encountering legal problems that have an international or cross-border dimension. This course is designed to introduce students to the skills needed to research common examples of these problems. The course is a skills course, not an exam course. The course will introduce the fundamentals of international and comparative law research in the context of a series of problems often faced by U.S. lawyers with primarily domestic practices. Students will receive feedback on their research and written work product and will have the opportunity to revise their work after the feedback. Final grades will be based on the portfolio of written work produced by each student. Topics are likely to include family law, enforcement of judgments, discovery, and other matters common to civil litigation.

Global Legal Perspectives (1 credit hours) - Mandatory course
Professor Natali, Professor DeJarnatt and other lecturers

The Global Legal Perspectives will provide students with an introduction - both in and out of the classroom- to international perspectives on law and legal practice. Topics will include an introduction to European Law, overview of the Italian legal profession, and international aspects of tax law. Students will be provided an opportunity to reflect on their personal perspectives on law, including their legal insights from the lived Roman experience. Students will also learn how to conduct themselves as professionals in visits to an Italian law firm and the Italian Bar Association. They will be expected to have business cards in English and Italian and will have opportunities to explore and share their learning and experiences with other legal professionals.

Susan L. DeJarnatt, James E. Beasley Professor of Law
J.D., Temple University, Beasley School of Law
B.A., Oberlin College

Professor DeJarnatt began teaching legal research and writing at Temple Law School in July 1996. Her scholarly research focuses on rhetoric in the debates about bankruptcy and education reform, on the psychology of parental choice in education, and on the connections between composition theory and legal writing pedagogy. In 2008 Professor DeJarnatt won the University Lindback Award for Distinguished Teaching.

Before teaching full time, she was a staff attorney at Community Legal Services, Inc. in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, from 1985 to 1996, specializing in consumer protection, bankruptcy, and housing issues; and from 1982 to 1984, an associate at the Philadelphia law firm of Litvin, Blumberg, Matusow and Young. Following graduation from law school, she served for two years as law clerk to the Honorable Joseph S. Lord, III, Chief Judge of the Eastern District of Pennsylvania.
